PREEMIES

WHO WE ARE

The Premature Infant Health Network, an initiative of the Association of Perinatal Networks of New York, recognizes the unique and sometimes life-long consequences children born prematurely face. In an effort to better understand the challenges premature infants and their caregivers encounter both in the NICU and when care begins at home, the Premature Infant Health Network will be holding roundtable meetings throughout New York State.

WHAT WE DO

The Premature Infant Health Network, along with the 18 Perinatal Networks of New York State, will bring together community and health organizations, healthcare providers, and parents to hear from those that experience firsthand the many unique challenges premature infants face once they leave the hospital and care begins at home. The information will be used in efforts to increase quality healthcare access and awareness around premature infant issues in New York State.

WHEN WE MEET

The Association of Perinatal Networks and REACH CNY are anxious to hear from parents, caregivers and interested community members on:

AUGUST 24, 2010 - 11:30AM – 1:30PM

United Way of Central New York

Rosamand Gifford Room

518 James St., Syracuse, NY 13203

NEW YORK PREMATURE INFANT HEALTH NETWORK
